Pharmaca Integrative Pharmacy now offering walk-in immunizations
Shots available for influenza, pneumonia and whooping cough

BOULDER, Colo. (August 16, 2011) – Pharmaca Integrative Pharmacy, the nation’s first and largest chain of integrative pharmacies, announced that it is now offering immunizations for influenza, pneumonia and whooping cough on a walk-in basis. The majority of Pharmaca’s pharmacists are trained to provide the shots to any customer who requests one during open pharmacy hours.

In addition, Pharmaca will hold Flu Shot Clinics every Tuesday in September, October and November, between 2-6pm. Customers can bring their questions about immunization and other health concerns to pharmacists and practitioners, and receive personalized advice about their health. Customers can also take advantage of special savings coupons that Pharmaca is offering exclusively to their flu shot customers.

“Pharmaca is proud to be an integrative solution for all of our customers’ health and wellness needs,” says Stuart Gratz, Pharmaca’s vice president of pharmacy operations. “By offering these immunizations at any time, we’re serving the needs of customers who feel that immunization is the best option for them—and making it most convenient for them.”

Pharmaca has made the process even simpler by making Patient Intake Forms available for download on their website. Patients can save time by filling them out ahead of time and bringing them with them when they request an immunization.
